MARJORY HENRY WEDS J. WHALEN IN NEVADA

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Whalen, married at Reno Wednesday morning of last week, were honored last night at a reception given at the Hotel Belvoir by Mrs. Russell Henry, mother of the bride.

The young couple drove to Reno early Wednesday morning, were married there and returned to Niles the same evening. The bride is the former Miss Marjory Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Henry, of the Hotel Belvoir. They have lived in Niles for about four years. The bride was a popular member of the younger set here. She attended the Washington high school, being graduated in 1933.

Whalen is employed by an oil company at Milpitas. The couple plan to make their home at the Hotel Belvoir for a time. Whalen is the son of Mrs. Margaret Whalen, prominent Milpitas woman.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Wilder and Mr. and Mrs. O. Walpert spent the three-day week-end at Silver Lake.

BANDIT NABBED WITH $9,500 LOOT FOLLOWING IRVINGTON BANK HOLDUP

"SCHOOL DAYS" SWEETENED BY DICK'S CANDY

In a world not widely praised for generosity, examples set by such benevolent folk as Dick Carvo should not go unsung. Although he shies from popular commendation, and insists that "it's not news", Dick's recent gift of 360 bars of candy to the Niles grammar school children will make the front page.

Each year Dick's good nature reaches its peak when the flocks of school children, returning to school after the summer vacation, press past his counter. He sees hungry sidelong glances, and they are not forgotten.

When accused of being "'too darned generous" Dick voices the opinion that you get what you give, after all.

J. R. Blacow Slugged By Young Robber Early Saturday Morning

A freight train, passing through Irvington Saturday morning, blocking the city streets, is thought to have been one of the main factors that led to the capture and arrest of John Dias, Alvarado man, who escaped with $9,500.00 loot after slugging J. R. Blacow, at the Irvington branch of the Bank of Alameda county early Saturday morning.

Dias, who had parked his automobile across the tracks near the Southern Pacific depot, found himself cut off in his flight to the car by the passing freight. Evidently panic-stricken, he took refuge in one of the old Irvington grammar school buildings where he was subsequently seized by police.

The holdup occurred just before eight o'clock Saturday morning, when Blacow arrived at the bank to make ready for the day's business. The bandit, who had apparently entered the bank by way of a back window sometime during the night, thrust two guns into the manager's back and bid him hasten in opening the vault. With the vault open, the thug struck Blacow over the head, and leaving him unconscious, proceeded to loot the cash drawers. Just as the bandit was leaving the bank, Blacow regained consciousness and made his way to the sidewalk, where he was met by C. M. Christiansen, bank employee, who was approaching as the thief fled. Both Blacow and Christiansen gave chase, the former giving up after a few minutes to be treated by Dr. E. M. Grimmer for scalp lacerations and mild concussion.

In the meantime, police had been summoned and under direction of Deputy Sheriff Radbruch arrived on the scene, and began a search of the immediate neighborhood. One of the bandit's guns, dropped in the bank, gave a clue to his identity, as did his car, discovered parked several blocks away. Dias' family was contacted, it is said, and his belongings identified. Knowing for whom they had to look, police redoubled their efforts.

Deputy Sheriff Van Patten discovered Dias in the old school house, hidden under a pile of rubbish and old furniture. He was unarmed, having thrown his remaining pistol away in his flight.

He was taken to the scene of the hold-up, meanwhile asking that he be sent to "the county, not to San Quinten."

The loot, consisting of bills of demoninations from $5 to $100, was found in Dias' hiding place. It was retained by police as evidence.

Dias, who is said to have confessed to police, was moved to the robbery, it seems, to secure funds for a payment on an automobile, which he had recently purchased. He is said to have been working at an Alvarado salt plant, although investigation proved that he had not been employed there for several weeks.

The robbery of the Irvington branch of the local bank, makes the list complete here. The Niles branch was held up about eighteen years ago, and the manager, Charles Evans, seriously wounded. The Alvarado branch was victimized several years later, and August May, president of the institution, severely wounded.

Deputy Sheriff Hugo Radbruch stated Monday that the citizens of Irvington are to be commended for their assistance. He stated that Blacow's cool-headedness in spite of his injuries, had much to do with the bandit's fatal haste in hiding nearby.

According to Radbruch, Dias confessed the crime and asked to be sent immediately to prison. He will appear tomorrow afternoon for preliminary hearing before Judge Allen G. Norris at the Centerville courthouse.

FATHER SERRA HONORED AT SUSQUICENTENNIAL SUNDAY AT MISSION

Celebration Similar To Others In California This Year

Following similar celebrations throughout the state, Alameda county commemorated the Junipero Serra Susquicentennial Sunday when several hundred people gathered at the Mission San Jose to witness a program in honor of the famous founder of California's missions.

Held before the old mission church, where a stand had been raised for the speakers and honored guests, the program began promptly at 1:30 p. m. The committee on arrangements consisted of Augustin S. MacDonald, president of the Alameda County Historical Society; Joseph R. Knowland, Native Sons Landmarks committee chairman; and Frank C. Merritt. Thomas J. Power, Irvington attorney, was active in preparations for the event.

A. S. MacDonald, previous to his introduction of Knowland, told the assemblage of the purpose of the Serra Susquicentennial, and of the important place it has had in mission communities from San Diego to Sonoma.

Joseph Knowland, as one of the main speakers on the program, began his address with praise for the Native Sons of the Golden West, through whose efforts the Mission San Jose was restored in 1915. Knowland praised particularly the work of the late George L. Donovan, who started and abbetted the drive for restoration.

The speaker pointed out the value of the work of the Franciscan padres in establishing the first permanent settlements in California.

In speaking of the preservation of the California Missions, Knowland stated that most of the more carefully restored ones are in the southern part of the state, where, he said, interest in landmarks is greater than in northern California. The speaker concluded his talk with the hope that future generations would take up the work of maintaining the missions as one of the state's greatest historic assets.

"The Serra Susquicentennial" was the topic of an address by Monsignor Joseph M. Gleason, historian, and rector of the St. Francis De Sales church. Father Gleason traced the exploration and occupation of California from before the mission period, to give a greater understanding of the character and courage of Junipero Serra in planning and carrying out his ambitious program for settlement of the region, and converting the aborigines. He praised the work of Professor Herbert E. Bolton, historian, whose papers and texts on early western history are used by students all over the world.

Monsignor Gleason pleaded that De Anza, as first explorer of the San Francisco bay region, and "father of San Francisco," be honored. He suggested that the great bay bridge, now under construc-

PARKS' TO LEAVE NEXT TUESDAY FOR CHICAGO

Mr. and Mrs Norman H. Parks will leave Niles Tuesday on a leisurely motor trip through the middle west, and to Chicago.

Mr. Parks, who has not visited his former home for many years, states that they will stop for a time at his birthplace, in Ord, Nebraska, and also visit Columbus, where he went to school and where his father formerly published the Columbus Telegram.

The travelers have laid out an itinerary that will take them to Lake Tahoe thence through Colorado and Nebraska where they will stop at Rochester, for a time with relatives. They will go from there to the World's Fair at Chicago. The return trip will be by way of St. Louis and Kansas City to Phoenix, Arizona. The Parks will visit for a time at Boulder Dam before returning up the coast to Niles.

Mr. and Mrs. Parks will make the trip in their new Studebaker Dictator coupe, recently purchased from Ed. Rose, well known local dealer. The travelers will be gone six weeks. Mrs. Martha Roland will stay in the Parks apartment while they are gone.

Management of the Township Register during the editor's absence will be in the hands of the staff—Frank Ferry, Paul Donovan and Everett Legge.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

By NORMAN H. PARKS, Publisher Register

WELL, WHERE DO YOU STAND?

At the time the Township Register went to press last week, the result of Tuesday's election over the state was still in doubt on many major offices. The ultimate outcome of the voting on the governership was clearly forecast two hours after the polls closed. Sinclair and Merriam had taken such an overwhelming lead that their nominations on the Democratic and Republican tickets were a foregone conclusion.

As we look back now on the campaign, we believe that the Township Register was the first paper in California—certainly the first one in the central area—that stated without equivocation that Sinclair would win the Democratic nomination in a walk-away.

Now that the final contest is under way, what is the voter to do; what stand is he to take? To the average man the task will not be hard. It is among the recognized leaders of both parties, and the newspapers, that the decision will be difficult and fraught with far-reaching consequences to the individual socially and economically.

Party allegiance in the past, difficult to ignore, today is loosely knit. Yet there are still party considerations that politicians and newspapers can not lightly set aside. However, this year the issues are such that partisanship will melt away under the passions of class consciousness and the cleaving to political theories never more seriously taken than at the present.

From the standpoint of the press, the editor is in an especially delicate position. If he is a progressive thinking Republican and liberal writer, to swallow Merriam will be a bitter pill. To go over to Sinclair may seem like a political shift to the "left" too far to travel safely.

If rumors are correct, incorporated greed will go to any lengths to defeat Sinclair. Special privilege, panic stricken, will drop the mask behind which it generally does politics and come out into the open, it is said, in an effort to drive into line political leaders and newspapers having a leaning toward the liberal views of the Pasadena author, who by his tremendous vote has crowned himself titular leader of the Democratic party in California.

Millions, it is very reliably reported, will be poured into the Merriam campaign in an effort to elect this ultra-reactionary, and place the state government in the hands of the monied interests, with Harry Chandler, Union Labor baiter, as political boss, and Friend Richardson, errand boy for the governor.

Yes, it is only too true, the situation is difficult for the man, who is neither a rank capitalist nor an extreme liberal. He, sadly enough, finds no way to exercise his political franchise and harmonize it with his political beliefs. He might turn to Haight, some say, but in our humble belief, that would be foolish, and eventually defeat the ends of justice and governmental decency. A vote for the very estimable young Haight will be a vote thrown away.

You must either take the Royalist Merriam, who throughout his long political career has never considered the rights of men superior to the rights of vast corporate holdings—whose every vote and major political activity has been to strengthen the grip of monopoly on state government, and hammer the common man deeper into debt and social degradation.

It is either a question, then, of taking this relic of a past and discredited governmental philosophy, or the more humane doctrine of Sinclair.

There can be no middle course; you must either be for HUMANITY or against it; for capitalistic greed or at war with it!

THE LITTLE WORD, "INCUMBENT," WON THE DAY

280 PUPILS RETURN TO GRADE SCHOOL AT NILES TUESDAY

Renovations In Building; Yard, Completed Last Week

With 280 pupils back in the classrooms on Tuesday, the opening day, registration at the Niles grammar school will pass the 300 mark this term, according to Principal E. Dixon Bristow. There were 27 pupils taken into the receiving class. It is interesting to note that there were 27 in the graduating class last spring.

Improvments in the school grounds were completed last Saturday. About an acre of ground was added, and the entire school yard leveled and surfaced. A new backstop was put up, that is the best of its kind in the east bay.

Improvements were not totally confined to the yard. The school auditorium was retinted and the old canvas curtain on the stage, was replaced with deep red draw curtains. The improvement in appearance is marked. The backstage equipment was renovated and monks cloth all-purpose drapes arranged in place of the old scenery.

Broken plaster and scratched walls throughout the school were repaired.

ANNUAL LUNCHEON OF COUNTRY CLUB NEXT THURSDAY

Garden Theme To Mark Smart Social Event At Centerville

With plans begun to stress garden projects throughout the coming year, the program of the first fall meeting of the Country Club will be built around a garden theme next Thursday when that group gathers at the club house for the annual fall luncheon.

Under the direction of Mrs. Frank T. Dusterbarry, club president, the committee chairmen have made complete preparations for the event. Mrs. R. L. Pond, luncheon committee, will oversee the preparation and serving of the refreshments. Mrs. J. R. Whipple, head of the garden group, has planned and supervised the decorating. Mrs. E. Dixon Bristow, chairman of the music committee, has prepared a program of special interest.

High officers of the Federated Clubs are expected at the meet, among them Mrs. Homer DeWitt Rose, president of the District federation, and Mrs. Wallace Meracle, county federation head. A number of east bay club presidents will be guests.

Mrs. E. Dixon Bristow has arranged a particularly interesting musical program for the afternoon. It will consist of a series of vocal and instrumental numbers, by artists from the Oakland Conservatory of Music. Virginia Scurry, an eminent pupil of William C. Nichols, will play Brahms' Rhapsody in G Minor and Impromptu in B Flat, by Schubert. Alice Trout Lucas, concert and radio artist, and a teacher at the conservatory, will announce her own numbers. Mrs. W. C. Nichols will accompany the artists to the luncheon. It is in great part through her interest that they were obtained, according to Mrs. Bristow.

Miss Shirley Malm, dancer, will give several interpretive numbers. Miss Malm is an instructor at the Williamson private school.

The annual luncheon, given during the early fall, is one of the highlights of the south county social calendar. The time will be 12:30 o'clock.

BRIDGING San Francisco Bay with ICE REFRIGERATORS

The San Francisco Bay Bridge could be lined from end to end and back again with the ice refrigerators that California women are buying this year from their ice companies.

That's a lot of ice refrigerators. Fifteen thousand of them... each one bringing perfect refrigeration to some California home... and at the same time building prosperity for the state.

Two of the largest ice refrigerator factories in the nation ... located here in California ... are working twenty-four hours a day to meet this demand. And the supplying of pure, crystal clear ice for these refrigerators is a home industry that pays millions of dollars for wages and supplies within the state.

ICE IS CHEAPER AND BETTER

But no mere desire to support local industry could account for any such demand. The reason's much closer to home. Alert housewives are discovering that a modern, low-temperature ice refrigerator is cheaper to buy and cheaper to own. And they're learning as well that only ice provides the non-drying cold that keeps foods fresh and tasty.

This Low Temperature Ice Refrigerator

$44.50

Beautiful in Design ... Scientific in Every Detail Uses Less Ice .... Keeps Foods Colder ..

Enclosed ice compartment
Thick, insulated walls
Insulated, self-sealing door

Congregational Church News

"The Christian Ideal and Our Actual World," will be the subject of the pastor's sermon Sunday morning. A wise man said recently, "This is a time of shattering; if a man's ideals can withstand the attacks of reality that have poured like waves of the sea across this modern day of ours, he has something, indeed, worth going after." The pastor will deal with the problems of thinking the "Christ Ideal," without losing contact with reality.

The Christian Endeavor met at at the parsonage Tuesday evening lined the activities for the winter. The date of the first party, to be a "Treasure Hunt" party, is Friday night, September 28. Every interested young person in the community is officially invited to be at the church on the above date, at seven o'clock sharp. Of course there will be eats!

The Sunday school teachers met at the aprsonage Tuesday evening of this week to discuss the possibilities of making this department of the church activities even more efficient and worth while. The staff of teachers is experienced and loves children. If not attending elsewhere, your children will find a jolly, helpful group in the Sunday school.

Bible Theater of the Air will present a highly dramatic play over KQW, San Jose station, at 4 o'clock, Sunday afternoon. "Judas Iscariot," is the lay, and it is based on the Bible story of Judas appearing before the priests after he had betrayed his Master, and asking them to take back the thirty pieces of silver they had given him for the terrible deed. Probably there is no more dramatic incident recorded in the New Testament. The cast as you will first hear them is as follows: Judas Iscariot, Wesley Dexter Gordon; Sentus, the temple guard, Ted Dundus; Annas, a priest, Clark A. Griffin; and Caiaphas, the High Priest, Charles Myrick.

TRAINS DELAYED BY TRESTLE FIRE IN NILES CANYON

Niles Firemen Called To Fight Dangerous Blaze On Main S. P. Line

Freight and passenger trains were tied up in the Niles yards for a time Saturday morning, when a serious fire threatened to destroy a trestle on the main Southern Pacific line in Niles Canyon.

Evidently well under way when discovered by a salesman, the blaze was reported to the railroad ofifcials here. An alarm was turned in, and the Niles fire department mustered its forces and raced to the scene.

Situated across the creek from the Richmond bridge, above Stoney Brook, the trestle was exceedingly difficult to reach, firemen said. They were forced to string out 600 feet of hose. After emptying their tank, the smoke-eaters began pumping from the creek, and after an hour's work had the fire quenched.

Although a number of itinerants in the vicinity vigorously denied responsibility for the dangerous blaze, firemen were of the opinion that it had started from a hobo jungle fire.

The Southern Pacific road chief, who was called to the scene, considered the bridge safe for trains after a detailed inspection. The structure was considerably charred, but intact. Rail officials expressed their gratitude to the Niles fire department.

"SCRUB" INITIATION AT HIGH SCHOOL TOMORROW

Freshmen, whose lives are full of terrors for the first few weeks, will have their fears justified tomorrow, when the annual Washington Union high school freshman initiation will hold sway.

Already "scrub" faces are drawn as word leaked out that the first year boys must appear garbed in regulation B. V. D'S, and the girls in short, "little-girl" dresses, and hair-ribbons. It is rumored that the girls will have to carry dolls.

The initiation committee, of which Bill Garcia is a member, is planning a number of clever stunts. Instructors will oversee the ordeal, which is to be held in the school auditorium.

Initiation periods, while dire in the eyes of the victims, have a real value in amalgamating a strange class into a unified group.

Jason, who had been communicating with the highway commissioners for some time, told of his satisfaction in receiving favorable word last week.

The Lions dance, always one of the season's best, is beginning to gather headway. Harold De Leon, energetic worker, was named head of the dance committee by Jason.

tion, be officially named the Anza bridge.

In telling of the Mission San Jose De Gualdalupe, the speaker mentioned the supervision of Father Luzuen, successor to Serra. The mission was built in in 1797, thirteen years after the death of the great Franciscan.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the Washington Union high school band, under the direction of Salvarado Billeci.

Mrs. Virginia Hunt, prominent Native Daughter, sang "The Star Spangled Banner." George Oakes, of Hayward, sang "I Love You California." Oakes, a native of Alvarado, is well known in Washington township.

At the conclusion of the program, Robert Livermore, great grandson of the original Robert Livermore, pioneer, who is buried at the Mission, sounded taps. The young Livermore is a first lieutenant in the National Guard.

Among honored guests were: Mrs. Sally Thaler, grand secretary of the Native Daughters of the Golden West; Mrs. J. E. Thane and Mrs. J. R. Whipple, Miss Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Powers, George Oakes and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Knowland.

Niagara Not to Quit

Science has discovered that Niagara falls will last until the year 23053. The gigantic cataract started to spill over a rock cliff 30,000 years ago and has only eaten its way through seven miles of solid rock in that time, says Pathfinder Magazne. Few of the more than 2,000,000 visitors to the falls each year realize that concealed behind the majestic and beautiful sight of millions of tons of water plunging 160 feet into a swirling gorge is a romance of industry. Through a treaty between the United States and Canada Niagara supplies warmth, light and power within a radius of more than 200 miles.

LOCAL CANNERIES TO PACK BEEF FOR U. S. GOVERNMENT

Drought Area Cattle to Be Snipped Here For Processing

Canneries in Washington township will take an active part in the Department of Agriculture plan to produce canned beef from cattle brought from the drought-stricken middle west, it was learned last week.

Crews have been working at the F. E. Booth plant at Centerville during the last week, installing cooking machinery and special equipment to handle the meat. Similar preparations are being made at the Pearce plant at Decoto.

The canneries are to operate under contract with the federal government, with federal supervisors and inspectors to watch over the pack, and see that pure food laws are observed to the letter.

Although the extent of the pack has not been mentioned, preparations point to several months' of activitiy at least.

The canned meat is not to be marketed, but will be turned over to the government for use in relief work.

It is said that a new pedro series will soon be forthcoming in an effort to unseat Floyd Parks and John Lowman, longtime champions. Both complacently state that they will welcome all competition.

ROUND EUROPE AIR FLIGHT IN AUGUST

1934 Contest Sponsored by Poland Aero Club.

Warsaw, England.—The biggest European sport flying contest, the "round Europe" flight for 1934, will be organized by the Aero club of the Polish republic, to which the winner of the last race in 1932, Franciszek Swirko, belonged. Swirko was killed a short time later.

The first "round Europe" flight actually was started and organized in 1929 by the Aero club of France. Participation for 1934 is assured by Poland, Germany, France, Italy and Czechoslovakia. But the failure of Britain to file notification has caused great disappointment.

The flying route covers 9,400 kilometers, as follows: Warsaw, Koenigsberg, Berlin, Cologne, Brussels, Paris, Bordeaux, Pau, Madrid, Seville, Casablanca, Meknes, Sidi Bel Abbes, Algiers, Biska, Tunis, Palermo, Naples, Rome, Rimini, Zagreb, Vienna, Brunn, Prague, Kattowitz, Lvov, Vilna, Warsaw.

This route is 2,000 kilometers farther than that of 1932. The distance must be completed between September 8 and September 15, that is over 1,100 kilometers per day. With the inclusion of the African laps, for the first time the flight crosses the frontiers of Europe.

The flight starts officially on August 29 with the technical examinations, which last until September 7. This hard trial includes: Minimum speed, start and landing within the shortest stretch, examination of gasoline consumption, and dismounting and reassembling of airplanes.

After the round Europe flight, on September 16, is the speed test, always awaited with great curiosity.

HONOR JOE MILLER OF JOKE BOOK FAME

He Was an English Actor Born 250 Years Ago.

New York.—Joseph Miller, famous for the jokes he never made, was born 250 years ago and recently a group of his professional descendants, comedians and writers of show material did him honor at the Theater cafe at 1560 Broadway. There they hung a plaque in memory of Joe and the great joke perpetrated on his name—the joke that ascribed to him one of the wittiest tongues of his day, whereas the recorded truth was that he had only one and certainly not more than three jokes in his whole life of fifty-four years.

The celebration was announced in the name of the Four Marx brothers, Joe Penner, Jack Pearl, David Freedman, Jack Benny, Killy K. Wells, Arthur Boran, Stoopnagle and Budd, Eddie Garr and George Givot.

Was Popular Actor.

The original Joe Miller was an actor and a popular one in such parts as Teague in Sir Robert Howard's "Committee," Trinculo in "The Tempest," the First Gravedigger in "Hamlet," and Marplot in "The Busybody." On the stage he was apparently an excellent comedian, but when he took his ease in his inn, the Black Jack in Clare Market, London, he laid humor strictly aside and the humorous marketmen and theatrical wits who congregated there could never get a smile out of him.

It became the custom, in fact, to ascribe all sorts of wild stories to Joe Miller, since he would have been the last man on earth to tell them, and after his death on August 16, 1738, his friend, John Mottley, the playwright, made a collection of jokes and anecdotes from many sources and published them under the title of "Joe Miller's Jests: or, the Wit's Vade-Mecum."

Book Printed After Death.

The book appeared one year after Joe's death, when his memory was still green, and had an enormous success. It has been reprinted, innumerable times, generally with additions and modernizations of the material.

One of the three jokes ascribed to Joe himself in the original edition of the Joe Miller Jest Book is a pretty fair sample of Joe's wit. Here it is:

"Joe Miller, sitting one day in the window of the Sun tavern, in Clare street, a fisherwoman and her maid passing by, the woman cried, "Buy my soles, buy my maid's.

"'Ah! you wicked old creature,' said honest Joe. 'What! Are you not content to sell your own soul, but you must sell your maid's, too?'"

NORMAN H. PARKS, Publisher Register

who dared assume that a judge might err—Ira F. Thompson.

George Edward Acret, who would have honored the supreme court bench, instead of casting a cloud upon it, polled more votes than any candidate ever polled against an incumbent judge in California. He received 216,000 votes in Los Angeles county alone, 55,000 more votes than were polled for Shaw, who was contesting the place of Sewell.

To be elected, Acret not only had to poll the full Sinclair vote but go into the Republican ranks and get at least thirty per cent of that vote. Without money and a statewide organization, the task was impossible. Most of the small newspapers were supporting Acret, and while this support cut deeply into the vote of Thompson, it was not sufficient to overcome that magic word, "incumbent," under whose witchery many a rascal has slid back into office.

Six years is a long time, after a man passes middle age. Lots of things can happen in six years—the most momentous thing in life may happen, DEATH! Thompson is in for six years. If he lives that long and we live that long, the contest will start again where it left off last Tuesday. But the judge is suffering from a chronic malady of indigestion, which under excitement or anger grows serious. We trust, however, that he will still be upon the political stage six years hence, and that the good God may spare our life that long—

For nothing is settled until it is settled right. Truth, you know, crushed to earth shall rise again.

BACK TO THE OLD SWIMMING HOLE

Next Tuesday morning the writer and his good wife leave the happy precincts of Niles, and turn the prow of their good ship, Dictator, to the East. Gone a month or more we shall visit the publisher's old home in Nebraska. Unless we change our plans en route, we shall go on to Chicago and view the World's Fair.

It seems rather strange that a newspaper man—or anyone else for that matter—could now afford to travel so far from home, unless he thumbed his way or took a side-door sleeper. The times are tough, we'll admit, and so far as affording the trip is concerned, we can't, but we are going anyway. We figure it out that the way things are shaping at Washington and Oskosh, it is only a question of time before tax-eating hordes will get everything we have been saving up for the incapacities of old age, so why not spend part of it having a good time rather than hand it all over to a lot of loafing politicians and racketeering office-holders who are doing their damdest to crush the life out of legitimate business.

So we're off on a trip that we have dreamed of for many years.

It was back in Nebraska the writer first saw the light of day. In a little town nestling beside the picturesque North Loup river he was born amid the rumbling of the old Washington hand-press as it ground out the weekly edition of the North Loup Herald.

Reading the event of our birth in the issue of that week, many years later, it was not at all flattering. We remember that the local minister met our father on the street and consoled him over his misfortune. Long an intimate associate of Artemus Ward, the great humorist, our father was also somewhat of a facetious chronicler; so we guess he really did not feel so badly over our birth as the story that he and the minister wept together over this calamity following on the heels of the famous and historical blizzard of that year and month would imply.

The old home may not be standing today, but the same beautiful and enchanting river ripples and flows on to the Platte through its wide and fertile valley.

As one grows older his thoughts turn constantly to the scenes of his youth. It will be a great happiness to visit the old towns of our boyhood and ramble again over the rolling hills of the winding Loup; overlooking the valley where lie buried our loved ones—all of them—just one lot left, left for us.

Leaving our business for a month does not worry us. It will be in good hands. Two local boys—Frank Ferry and Paul Donovan—aided by the mature advice of Everett Legge, will make the Register a better paper during our absence than it has been before.

One regret we have about leaving, and it will draw a smile from our readers. We are concerned over Tom, the cat of almost human intelligence about whom we have written before. Now Tom is capable of great and unselfish and undivided love. On past occasions while the writer has been away, Tom has gone on a fast, his grief has been so great. We have never left him so long before, and are surely worried that he might actually starve himself to death. It is peculiar how much you can care for a dumb animal,—only Tom is not dumb, but he is an animal. An animal, you know, does not reason. It accepts you as you are. To your faults it is blind and deaf and dumb, if it loves you, and its affection passes all understanding.

We shall worry about Tom, but not our business.

We shall try to write you a weekly letter of conditions in the middle west, and until we see you again, au revoir, but not goodbye.

Leaf Hopper Is Blamed for Stunting Alfalfa

The yellowing and stunting of the second growth of alfalfa so prevalent last year was not due to "sun burn" as commonly anticipated but to an insect foe of alfalfa, according to L. F. Graber, University of Wisconsin authority on alfalfa.

"This insect, the leaf hopper," said Graber, "is a tiny but potent foe of alfalfa, causing stunting and marked yellowing of the second growth, yet infestations and injury are easily controlled. Our findings have definitely shown that the simple expedient of delayed cutting of the first crop is the effective remedy."

It is hard to believe but nevertheless true that a matter of deferring cutting of the first growth from six to twelve days will increase the seasonal yields by as much as a ton per acre because it reduces the number of leafhoppers that will appear in the next growth, Graber asserted.

Leafhoppers do not appear in the first growth until spring and by deferring the cutting until about the end of June the insect will lay the bulk of its eggs in the first growth so that they may be removed in and with the hay. This protects the next crop, he declared.

Value of Manure

One ton of good quality manure is equal in fertilizing value to 100 pounds of 4-10-4 fertilizer. At least this is indicated by tests conducted by the Arkansas College of Agriculture in co-operation with farmers in every section of that state.

These tests showed that ten tons of manure gave a little higher yield of corn, and a little lower yield of cotton, than 600 pounds of 4-10-4 fertilizer. In addition, the residual effects on the following crops were greater with the manure. This applies to manure that has not been damaged severely by heating or leaching.

The trials also showed that a better balanced fertilizer is obtained by adding 50 to 75 pounds of superphosphate to each ton of manure. Manure is poorer in phosphate than in nitrogen and potash.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Producing Milk

Several hundred cow-testing association records from Indiana herds show that on the average it takes 54 pounds of silage, 26 pounds of hay and 32 pounds of grain to produce 100 pounds of milk with the average 400-pound cows, states G. A. Williams, Purdue university. At present feed prices the cost is approximately 44.8 cents. With the average 200-pound cow it takes 81 pounds of silage, 48 pounds of hay and 42 pounds of grain for 100 pounds of milk.

Voliva Ends Smoking Ban Except for Zion Women

Zion, Ill.—Wilbur Glen Voliva, fighting overseer of the "holy city" of Zion, issued a manifesto lifting the ban of smoking. The edict, shattering a rule rigidly enforced for many years, stunned his thousands of devout followers.

He also abolished the twelve apostles of the Apostolic Christian Catholic church and announced that seven of them would get positions as assistant overseers.

"Zion is in for some very heavy judgment," said Voliva, who preaches that the world is flat and that the millennium is not far off.

"I'm not going to damn a man for taking a pill or smoking a cigarette.

"This city houses more nuts and long-haired fools than any other place of its size in the world."

He made it clear, however, that smoking among women would not be tolerated.

Man Who Stole Patrol Sentenced to Sit in It

San Jose Man Hurt Near Niles Monday

A San Jose man, whose name was not learned, is said to have been seriously hurt Monday night when he was crushed against the underpass south of Niles while riding on top of a load of baled hay.

His companions, it is said, had urged him to ride on top of the cab, which was lower than the load. He persisted, however, in riding on the bales. It is thought that he dropped off to sleep and failed to see the danger as the truck approached the underpass. He was rolled along the top of the load. The clearance was not great enough to allow passage of his body.
